

Nest Recording

Birds
Science
People

www.bto.org/nrs

ELSPETH ROWE

The success of the breeding season dictates how many young birds enter the population. The Nest Record Scheme monitors the timing of breeding and the number of eggs and chicks produced during each nesting attempt.

Nest Record Scheme data have shown that birds are nesting earlier in the year in response to warmer springs. You can help us to monitor these changes by becoming a nest recorder - visit www.bto.org/nrs to find out how.

JOHN BOWERS

PRODUCTIVITY